YALE HIGH SCHOOL

1 9 9 3

What makes Yale High School a "Different World"? Never in recent history has our campus undergone so many changes. When students walked through the doors to start 1993, they were greeted by a new principal, assistant principal and several new teaching staff members. Mr. Wood, who had previously been a senior social studies instructor on our staff, is the new principal, replacing Mr. Darin, who had been accepted as the district's superintendent. Joining Mr. Wood was Mr. Johnson, moving from the junior high as a counselor to become our assistant principal, replacing Mr. Decker, who over the summer was offered the principalship of the Hamtramck High School. Staff additions for the year include Mr. Adam Burns, taking over for retiring Mr. Regis Smith; Mr. Gillespie, filling the vacancy created by Mr. Wood's promotion; and Mr. Lake, as a shared math teacher with the junior high. If the beginning of the school year is any indication as to what's ahead, 1993 will truly be different.

Near Right: School is more than just books and tests. Senior Aaron Kretschmann works on an elective course, Photography, that gives him practical knowledge that can be used outside of the classroom setting.

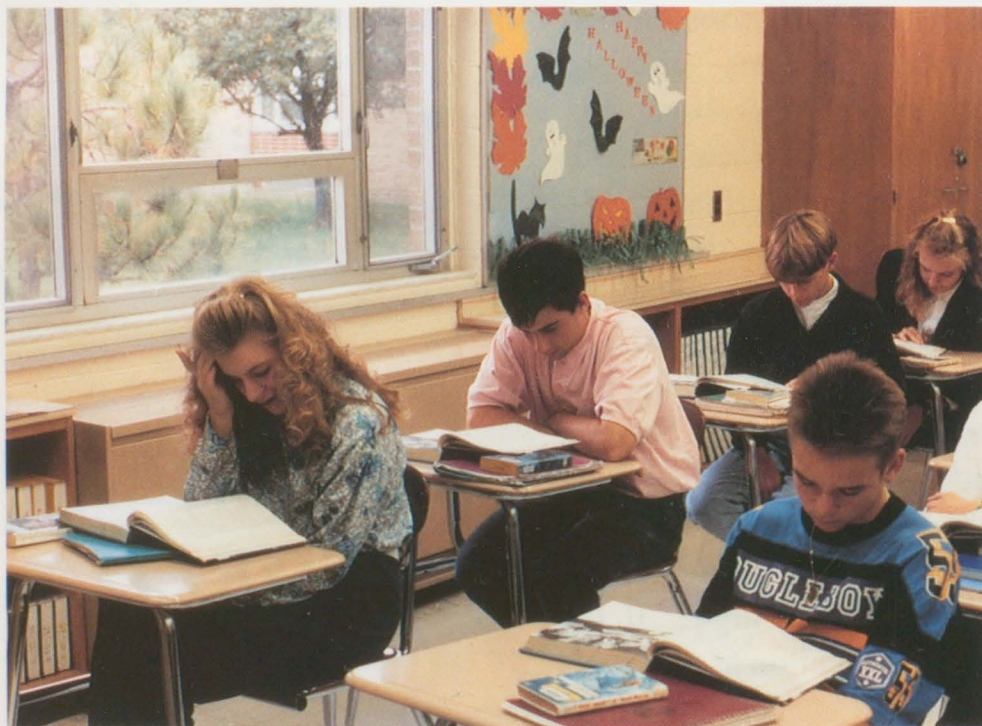

Right: Caught in study, Seniors Adam Collins and Trevor Warfel work on an assignment in the library

Right: Senior Varsity Football Player, Ben Slaski, has to go without an after-school job due to the time involved with this sport.

Below: School is still school, and study is the most important part of a class. Ms. Bromberger's fifth hour English Class demonstrates just how important study is to school.

A DIFFERENT PACE OF LIFE

Students in 1993 are finding an ever increasing pace of life. Demands are now placed on the student to excel in school, sports, extra-curricular activities and after school employment. With rising costs, most teenagers have found the need to seek jobs to pay for school clothes, cars, insurance, and money for entertainment. Employment offered to those under eighteen usually means minimum wage ($4.25 per hour) , twenty hours a week, service related jobs such as fast food restaurants. Added to this demand of time for the job is the unwillingness of the Yale student to give up the other activities such as sports, clubs and the most important time consumer, school work. With the job market the way it is, most realize the need that some additional training will be necessary beyond high school, whether it is SC4, a four year university, vocational training or the military. To reach this goal, students must be prepared by doing well with all high school work and grades. Time and effort are what student life is about; working toward different career goals is the student's reward.

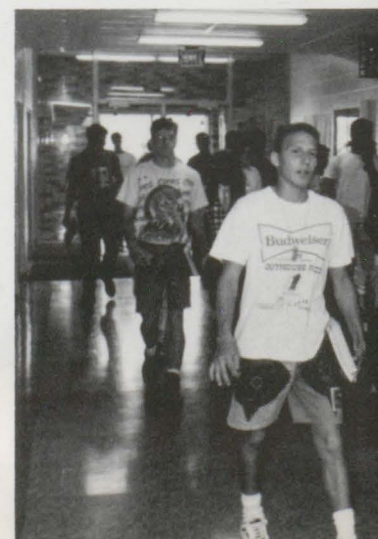

Different? You Bet! Tonya McMurtry needs her extra hands to make it through lunch in twenty minutes.

Right: Even the weather was abnormal. After one of the coolest, wettest summers in recent history, school time brought warm weather, and shorts were the attire of choice.

Below: Making the transition from teacher to principal is Mr. Wood.

A DIFFERENT WORLD

How is the 1993 Yale High student so different? The differences are not just superficial. We can congratulate each other for our successes. Many great things are happening on our campus to make us proud of ourselves. All MEAP scores increased this year, and we exceeded the state average for this test again. This trend in increased scores extended to the seniors who took the ACT for college entrance and received higher scores, which translates into increased chances to receive scholarships and grant monies. Outside of the classroom setting, approximately thirty percent of the student body participated in at least one sport. For the past three years, fifty to fifty-five percent of our student athletes, receiving a varsity letter has maintained a 3.0 grade point average or better. For four years, Yale athletes have received the conference All Sports Trophy. Furthermore, our school's fans have been honored for five years with the STA Sportsmanship Award for their excellent conduct at sporting events. Yale students are different and proud of it!

LOOK ABOUT US

The students on our campus have a look about them and the clothes in fashion this year help to convey that unique and individual appearance. Yale High School accepts students in casual clothing like shorts and t-shirts, and this year's fashion for students, although casual, are by no means cheap. Price seems to be the dictating force as to how many items a student can have in his/her wardrobe. The latest designer jeans, Gibraud, will deplete a student's clothing budget of at least sixty-five dollars. The newest trend in blue jeans is the "relaxed fit," which makes for a tight waist and looser legs. Colors this year are darker and richer with burgundy, navy, sage green, deep purple, and warm earth tones. Footwear also is making a statement with boots for both men and women. Cross-Colours is a new company that offers typical Afro-American colors as a way to convey that we all should have a non-racial attitude. Men's style blazers and men's ties are another fashion style available for the female student. Continued or returning favorites include B.U.M., I.O.U., sports jerseys and t-shirts, neon and pegged legged jeans. Variety is what gives the Yale student a different look in 1993.

SCHEDULE

For most Yale High School students the day begins at 6:30 a.m; give or take a half hour starting with things like taking a shower, breakfast, finishing up that last assignment, etc. When the third bell rings at 7:45 a.m., it is the signal that first hour is off and running. Students have a variety of choices for classes with the selection usually based on career decisions; the options available include math, English, science, social science, fine arts, industrial arts, physical education, home economics and business, as well as the ability to take classes offered at the St. Clair County TEC center. What a student does after his/her years at Yale High School depends on how well he plans and takes advantage of the courses he chooses. Another highlight to the student day is the lunch period, which has come to be the major social period for students; at twenty minutes it is the longest time to sit and talk with friends. After lunch, students' attention falls off, and the end of the day at 2:05 p.m. is the paramount concern. Students know that after dinner, homework and possibly a part-time job are waiting that morning and classes are not far away when the schedule will start again.

A DIFFERENT TYPE OF RIDE

What is a car? To a student it means many things. An automobile is independence from the yellow school bus (which gives you longer to sleep, and avoids a possible two hour ride to school). It allows you the ability to “cruise”, go on dates and gives you a way to get to that part-time job that pays for gas and insurance. However, a car is much more. Many students engage in heated arguments about the virtues of one model or make of an automobile over another. To some, a car is a status symbol while others see it as just a mode of transportation. Prices for cars can range from a few hundred dollars to several thousand, but the initial price is just the beginning. Students work long and hard to pay for these gas guzzlers, with gas at the current rate of $1.09 per gallon for economy gas. Student insurance premiums, on average, set a student back approximately six hundred to a couple thousand dollars per year. At times it seems to be a vicious cycle-working for a car to needing a car for work. Weighting the balance between the freedom it offers and the demands it places on a student, it is still the most wanted object of a student's affections.

What is a prom? In our school it has come to mean a “coming out ball” or a “debutante ball.” It is the first of many formal events for the senior class and the beginning or introduction of the junior class into the upperclassmen society of the school. The senior class enjoyed their prom at the St. Clair County Community College Student Center on Saturday, May 9, 1992. This much-anticipated dance involves weeks of pre-prom preparations including the tux rental, the search for that perfect dress, dress hoops (if needed), jewelry, corsages, garters, hair appointments, make-up, and shoes. The actual dance finally takes place after pictures were taken, and just like many events in life that takes weeks of planning the dance all too soon comes to an end. With the close of the prom the class of 1992 realized that the pace of activities for graduation would quicken, and the class of 1993 looked to the future.

A DIFFERENT SORT OF EXCITEMENT

This year's homecoming was the earliest homecoming in recent years. Homecoming took place on Saturday, September 26. This meant that the student body didn't have to contend with bad weather that comes when homecoming is held in October. To build toward the excitement of the game, the student body had a spirit week that included backwards day, hat and college logo day, neon and tie-dye day, class color day and the traditional blue and white day. On Friday the senior and junior highs had a pep assembly on the Yale Memorial Field. Participants included the football teams, the homecoming court, Junior High, Junior Varsity and Varsity Cheerleaders, cross country teams and the Bulldog Pack. Saturday's events stressing the theme "Disney" started with a parade at noon through the business district followed by the victorious game against Armada Tigers (30-14) with the half-time crowning of this year's Queen Shelley Gleason and King Will Seaton and the announcement of the float winners. Finishing off the homecoming events was the dance in the high school gym sponsored by the student council. Although the homecoming was early, it never lacked for student enthusiasm.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF STUDENT

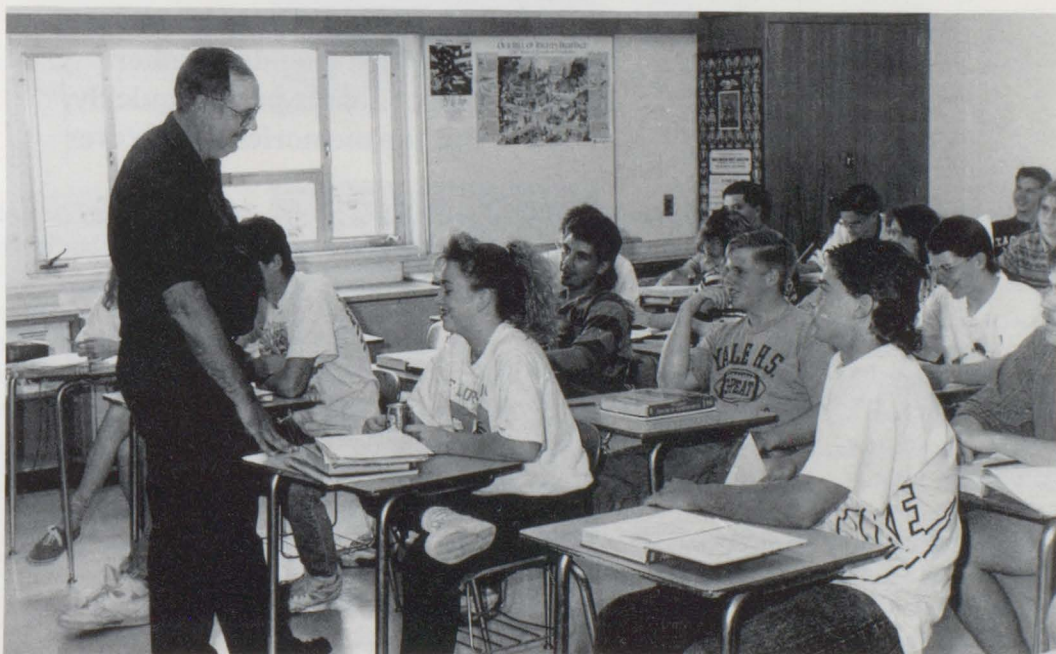

stu ▪ dent (stōod'nt, styood'-)

n. 1. a person who studies, or investigates 2. a person who is enrolled for study at a school, college, etc. A Yale Student is more than just your standard definition. Without the individuals on the following pages, Yale High School would be nothing but a building. Each day, starting at 7:45 a.m. til 2:05 p.m., from the end of August to mid-June, the halls of this building are filled with lectures, laughter, conversations, friends, etc. ; and it is through the contributions of each student, whether in sports, academics, or clubs and organizations, that this building becomes a school. The year 1993 was no exception with our students continuing the fine records and accomplishments that our community has come to expect. With this in mind, the yearbook staff has dedicated itself to showing as many different students as possible within these pages.

Special times special places
Special friends together;
The moments pass so quickly,
But the memories last forever

As is customary for the Class President, I'm writing another yearbook entry. I've written these entries before, and they're always similar. However, because this is my final one, it must automatically be unique.

For the past four years of our lives, we've had the comfort of knowing that on Monday morning the School will provide familiar faces, schedules, and routines. This, however, is coming to an end, and for some, none to soon. Yet it is that security of stability that we'll all strive for in the years to come.

I'm sure that I speak for all Seniors when I say that there probably isn't a teacher or administrator at Yale High who hasn't made a positive impact on our lives and impression on our futures. With the limited finances here at Yale, it's a great testament to the administration to provide the quality teachers and staff members that make our educational system one of the "class" systems in the area.

Finally, I'd like to say to my fellow seniors that it has been a great privilege to walk beside you all and serve you as your president for the past three years. I'd also like to wish you the absolute best in pursuing your goals. I also wish the underclassmen, who are coming through the school next, much success.

Good Luck!!
Sincerely,
Steven John Kwasnik
President

When the food lacks taste juniors can be creative like Brian Lossing and Tanya McMurtry with lunchroom games like "food drop."

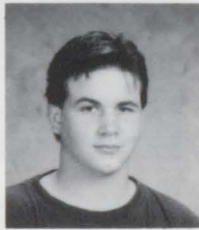

"We're Super Smart."

When asked what the major accomplishments of the Junior class are, the answers are as varied as the individuals in the class. "We're the closest class in the school; we all know each other" is the most important aspect according to Amy Preiskorn. However, Suzanne Perry believes, "The Juniors are super smart as a class. Also, at homecoming we were the loudest! I don't care what those teachers said. We had the most spirit!" The answers to this question show the pride that class members feel about each other. "I think that we are the trend setters of this school!" is how Samantha Lane perceives her fellow classmates. This sense of accomplishment is evident even in sports "Ronaldyn Willard is an excellent runner. She made all sports team, and she really doesn't get the recognition she deserves" is how Jenna Kubitskey feels. Strong feelings, varied answers and sense of pride are the major accomplishments of the junior class.

"One of my career options is interior decorating, but I'm still not sure. That's why I'm taking art classes to see if I really like the field" is how Christine Aldis approaches her class choices.

TIME FOR CHANGES

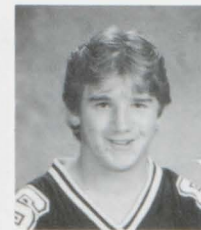

It is finally here! After a long wait of being considered an underclassmen, the class of 1994 has reached the pinnacle of class status obtainable by being upperclassmen. What this means takes on different forms to different students. "Having your freedom without having to worry about all the confusion of being a senior" was how Danielle Francek summed up her feelings of being a Junior. "This is the last chance that we can get close to our class before becoming a senior" is how Tracy Kern feels about this status. Whatever the sentiments of the student, the junior class is full of diversity and changes. For many, this is the year of the first car and the burdens of payments, gas expense and insurance. Another thought on most juniors minds seems to be "looking forward to the first prom..." as expressed by LaTricia Mason.

This is also a time to start with more serious thoughts of what colleges and career choices need to be made before entering the senior year. With a class size of approximately 150 students, these students investigated many career possibilities through Career Days offered through the counseling department. "I am looking at a two year degree in restaurant management" is the choice of junior Liz Champion. Juniors had the option of starting a TEC program, and thirty-one students took this opportunity with the choice of courses from heating and air conditioning, automobile body repair, business, health, restaurant management, child care, building construction, marine tech., automobile tech., cosmetology, electronics and hydraulics and CAD. Jeff Thierry is one junior involved in the TEC CAD program and feels "It's different; it's more like a business or a job than school. Drafting class gave me an interest, and I would like a career in automobile design after an additional two years at SC4."

For the juniors, being an upperclassman is a time for changes, choices and freedom. Yale's class of 1994 can best be described as diverse.

SECRETS

Most parents think they know their children but do they really? Did your parents know about the time you were suppose to be at a certain place and you weren't? How about the party while your parents were on vacation? What happens to the family car when parents aren't around? Tony shared this, "I snuck outta of my house and put the car in the ditch right by the driveway." Another student had this to say, "I put the Suburban in the ditch while tuning in the radio-NOT!!!" Most of the untold stories that parents never seem to have knowledge about involve students and driving. But this is not the end of unreported incidents; teenage pranks are also high on this list. What constitutes a prank? According to one junior, this may be "running around town throwing eggs at everything." Another student's favorite prank was "smashing pumpkins against mailboxes." By the time a student reaches junior status, what they share with their parents seems to become less and less. With the freedom of driving comes the opportunity to break away from parents more watchful knowledge of daily activities. This does not mean that all students practice deceit or are on their way to a life of crime, but it can be rather a time to be with friends, to try new experiences and to break away from our rural community.

Hello, my name is Zygmunt Porada III. I am the sophomore class president. The vice-president is Kimberly Boughner, the treasurer is Brian Campbell, and the secretary is Sarah Tomaschko. We have done a great job in getting activities going and working together.

For our first project we earned first place in the homecoming float competition. We hope to repeat that again next year.

The next activity we did was a candy sale. We did well, and plan to use it for future projects.

Less required subjects in the sophomore year gives students the ability to take more electives such as the typing class that Jamie Kinney selected.

If high school can be considered a family, then sophomores would be considered the middle child. Just like the middle child, they are not quite old enough for the respect that juniors and seniors seem to have but too old for freshmen antics. Gone are the days when conversations centered around childish past times like nintendo and comic books. Too young is the sophomore for thoughts of prom, or what to do after graduation. Where does a sophomore fit in within the high school family? What are some immediate concerns of sophomores as they make it through this year? "You don't have everyone pushing you around as much as when you were a freshman and the thought of being closer to graduation" is how Andy Hartway perceives his sophomore year. "More girls talk to me, and I'm able to drive" are the major perks of Brian Campbell's sophomore year. The ability to obtain the all important driver's license is one commonly repeated plus of this group, and as Andrea Rector expressed the next most common response, "...you feel a little more important." This year's sophomores make the high school family a complete picture.

Working hard for grades is not upperclass exclusive as demonstrated by sophomore Heather Rushton.

Most Important Class

Wheels mean more to class of 1995

The sophomore year involves classes unique to this group such as American history, required English, physical science or chemistry, but ask any sophomore, and the most important class of this year will most likely be driver's education. Most students take this class sometime during the year, and then they wait for their sixteenth birthday to take the state required written and driving performance test. The joy of driving is usually a short-lived feeling once the reality of the situation sets in; instead of driving your friends for fun, you will be forced to run errands for your parents or even worst, driving your younger brother or sister around. "I think getting my license is the most important part of being a sophomore. I am looking forward to being able to just drive around like going to the mall or the movies " is how Joe Brown feels about this event. "I guess getting a job like being a busboy in Port Huron is what I'll do when I get my driver's license." That is the second most stated reason for using a driver's license, according to sophomores and expressed by Ryan Morgan. Freedom and responsibility, fun and reality- these are the sophomore thoughts on driver's education the-most important class to any sophomore.

Hello. I'm the freshmen class president, Brian Bearss. The other class officers are vice president Tina Moore, secretary Jodi LePla and treasure Lisa Butler. Our class has participated in many activities this year. We placed second in the homecoming float competition with our float entitled "Honey We Shrunk the Tigers!" Many ninth grade students were involved in sports, clubs and other extra-curricular activities. Most freshmen found their first year of high school to be challenging and exciting. We're looking forward to the next three years of high school.

Biology I helps freshmen Brian Francek get a new perspective on the world

"High school is harder in some ways, but it's nothing I can't handle."

From junior high to high school is a big step forward for many freshmen. These students acquire many changes as they walk through these doors. Freshmen, Kelley Chandler said there seems to be a lot more people. She feels high school is harder, and the new requirements for graduating are tougher, but she realizes that it is for her own good. Kelley's overall outlook on high school is to concentrate on her education and to do the very best that she can. Iky Harms quotes, "High school is harder in some ways, but it's nothing I can't handle. It just takes more studying." He's met a lot more people and likes the treatment he has gotten from the upperclassmen. High school rules seem to be a big difference to Kippy Bahr. He has realized that high school isn't just fun and games. He quotes, "passing my classes is a big deal because here if you fail a class, you have to retake it in order to get credit, so I'd rather do it right the first time and not have to face the consequences of failing."

Above: Working together on a Health project doesn't have to be without fun as seen in the faces of freshmen, Tom LaPerre and Mrs. Arnold.

"So you know how your body works."

Required classes. No other class has more required classes per year than the freshmen class. Ninth graders are required to take physical education for one semester, health for one semester, a math class, world history or geography, biology and an English class. This leaves freshmen the option of selecting only one elective class. While most other classes have as a requirement an English, math and a social science requirement, health, biology and physical education seem to most associated with the freshmen class.

Most people have a good idea of what is meant by "health," but Mrs. Arnold, one of the health teachers, gives a better understanding of the definition and the importance of this required freshmen class. "This class was designed and presented by the state of Michigan to teach young adults the importance of their physical, emotional and mental well being of their bodies and minds." Good hygiene techniques, communication skills and drugs and alcohol abuse are considered important class content material for this class. The issues covered in health like the abuse of drugs and alcohol takes many a student lives each year throughout our country so it is hoped that students take this class seriously. Mrs. Arnold said she hopes her students benefit and learn many life skills from this class.

The other required class that all freshmen will take is biology. How our body and our organs work is one of the major points that Rachel Ainsworth has learned this year in biology. She has also learned how to test for sugars, fats and proteins. "So you know how your body works" is how Jessica Mears has summed up her biology class work. Although freshmen have the most required classes, the course content of these classes will be the building blocks of future course work.

A DIFFERENT LEARNING IS GOING ON HERE

“We will establish, develop and maintain a curriculum that guarantees an educational opportunity for each student in a safe, caring and creative environment. We believe it is our purpose to educate and challenge all students and to provide support and foster positive growth for physical, social and emotional behaviors and attitudes.

We must have the ongoing involvement of our staff, students, parents and community in planning, interaction and support for Yale High School to be successful in its mission.” This is the Yale School System's Mission Statement and our students seem to be adapting well. Ninety-four percent of our students are in class learning on a daily basis. Over sixty-two percent of the graduating class will go on to attend a college or four year university. Over five percent of the senior class will attend a technical school, over twenty six percent will join the work force and over six percent will join the military. With all that is available to our students it just proves that “learning is going on here.”

Necessary Evils

Ask any student about his or her least favorite class, and the answer is usually math or science. At least that is the answer that people expect to hear and maybe the answer that will be given in a group. Y.H.S. students are like most students and don't want to give the impression of enjoying a math or science class. No one wants to be a math or science "Nerd!" When asked out of the group situation, students readily admitted that they liked these classes. "My favorite class is sixth hour, Alegbra II; I've always liked math. I guess I like math because it really makes you think" is how sophomore Kim Boughner expressed her feelings. "I have the newest teacher Mr. Burns for physical science. He is calm and doesn't try to pound it into your brain but really tries to help you. He makes the class fun with lots of labs" is how sophomore Sarah Tomaschko feels about her class. The major problem isn't just perceptions but the realities this year at Y.H.S. of overcrowding. "We have approximately forty students in our physics class which makes it hard because not all the students are at the same level, and the whole class has to slow the pace. It would be nice to have two classes to divide the ability levels of the students, but there isn't the room in the school" are the regrets of junior Jenna Kubitskey. Although students have mixed reactions to science and math, all students see the need for this course work and realize it is required. A necessary evil!

Does Your Body Good!

Mind and body is the emphasis of health and physical education. Although these classes are required of all freshmen, many students will take an advanced P.E. course sometime during the remaining years of high school. What these courses hope to do are to stress the importances of lifetime behaviors. Health class teaches students about Aids, communication, stress, substance abuse, diet, coping with problems and the functions of the human body. "I think this class is important because it stops a lot of people from going out and drinking and other dumb things like not reacting well with your problems" is how freshmen Lois Friedland feels about her health class. The body is taken care of in a physical sense in the physical education part with students learning different sports and their rules, as well as weight-lifting. "I took P.E. II because you get the chance to lift more. I like weight-lifting because it helps you get stronger and conditions your body" is why sophomore Brad LaMay took P.E. II. Mind and body and life-time skills are Health and P.E.

Cooking that perfect bread, sewing those shorts for spring break and typing that business letter. How are these all related? Foods, Clothing, Personal living, Business, Accounting and Typing are a few of the electives that students have the option of selecting. What these courses teach is increasingly more important as our lifestyles, time and social conditions change. Students are finding the need to learn how to cope with daily problems of living, marriage, maintaining a career and finding the balance between all of these areas. "Foods class teaches you about the culture of a country, the people, what crops grow in that country and why people eat and cook the way they do. You really don't cook all the time, like everyone thinks. Usually just once a week" is the explanation senior Chris Chandler gave for foodclass. Seniors may also choose Parenthood as a way to meet the senior social science requirement. Dana Cooper elected this course because "Parenthood seemed interesting to me. I've learned how to take care of a child and the problems of being a parent like balancing career and parenthood." Career goals are another reason for elective courses "I would like to own my own business someday. So I feel the skills taught in this class will help," commented junior, Stacy Silverthorn. Balancing career and lifestyles are the relationship between Home Economics and Business classes.

World Students

Why are the social sciences so important to the Yale High School student? "Social science is the study of people living together in groups, as families, tribes, communities, etc." is the definition in the Webster's New World Dictionary. At Y.H.S. students are required to take four years of social science classes. Freshmen are required to take World Geography or World History; Sophomores must take American History; Juniors take Economics/ Government, and Seniors must take two of the following four classes: Psychology, Sociology, Parenthood or Current World Affairs. The purpose of social science classes is to teach students that we are just a small part of an ever-changing world, to expand the students knowledge of current events and to show the relationship between history and our current world. "History is important so we can learn from our mistakes and make better decisions in the future" is how freshmen, Tricia Flint perceives these requirements. History doesn't have to be old and moldy. "He tries to show how world events affects us, and yet, it's not dull. He makes the class a lot of fun with group interaction and humor" is how senior Laura Kihn feels about the newest member of the social science staff Mr. Bill Gallespie. Giving students knowledge about man and the ever-changing world is what social science at Y.H.S. is all about.

Veneal or Venael?

Cogent is to favorable as ... or officious is to meddlesome as...or is it veneal or venael? Y.H.S. English students could answer all these questions. English is a requirement of all Yale freshmen, sophomores, juniors and is a popular elective of the majority of the senior class. Although not required of the seniors, most understand the need for the skills that will be of use in a college or a university. The ability to communicate with others in an intelligent manner, the ability to comprehend the written word and hopefully the ability to enjoy reading a good book are the aspirations of the English department. "It's hard for me what with all the rules and learning to put my thoughts on paper, but I think I've learned a lot;" is how sophomore Tamara Bennett views her English performance. "I took Senior College English for a more selfish reason both Mr. Little and my older sister told me to take this class because it would really help with college term papers when I start college," were the reasons for senior Marlene Armstrong's selection of Senior English. Whatever the reason and whether or not college is in the offering, the art of communication which one learns in an English class is a valuable lesson.

Pursuit of an Interest

What is the connection between computers, lathes, brushes and Marysville, Michigan. Technology and the fine arts have always had a working relationship at Y.H.S. It is not uncommon for students to select drafting, woods, metals, tech., art, photo, yearbook, or any of the available courses of studies available through the St. Clair County TEC Center. This relationship starts with a student's interest in pursuing a vocational program and may begin with the election of art classes for knowledge in drawing, perspective, painting, etc, continues with industrial arts courses such as tech. and CAD work and concludes with student work at the TEC Center. The larger group of students that select these areas for electives do so for a variety of reasons from the decision to further studies at a two year college, four year university, a vocational school or just to enhance an interest. "I'm taking art classes now so I can get prepared for college classes that will revolve around an art major" is the reason for junior Ryan Wesley's interest. Junior, Dan Graves takes art classes because "I want to find out what potential I have, experiment with different mediums since I want to become a graphic artist or cartoonist." Direction is also important to junior, Jeff Kendall who won a state competition in drafting at the age of thirteen years old. "I have an interest in CAD. I would like to be an architect and will start with two years of TEC after graduation followed by two years at Macomb Community College then find a job and let my employer send me for my last two years of university work." "I want a career in CAD like an architect or draftsman" is the goal of junior Shaye Francek. Talk to a Y.H.S. student in the industrial arts or the arts and the correlation between the two areas becomes clear- pursuit of goals!

Phrasing, Intonation and Pauses

Different languages than what we are used to hearing. Music and Spanish can be considered different languages; both use phrasing, intonation, pauses, etc. Music and Spanish at Y.H.S. instruct students in culture, history and structure, and offer the chance for travel either to events like field trips and food experiences in Spanish to competitions in choral and band events. Last year the Ensemble Band and Choral went to the State Finals and received Division I and II ratings. The ratings received at the state level were the highest the band has achieved in many years. Yale High School students have the opportunity to select music courses or Spanish in the Fine Arts Department, in addition to art, photography, year-book or journalism. These classes are often overlooked for the accomplishments of the students' performances, and they don't receive the crowds that attend high profile events such as sporting competitions. "I take academic classes and cheerleading, but singing is most important to me. I'm planning on attending college for choral music instruction. I feel we work so hard with our music and people just seem to take our music for granted," is how senior Angela McGeary expressed herself. Junior Spanish II student Diane Anderson, said "I take Spanish because it is interesting. I really find it to be a challenge." Students are also becoming aware of the fact that foreign language knowledge is more important for a more global knowledge that business and related fields demand. Whatever the reasons for a student working in these "foreign" languages, the achievements that Y.H.S. students gain are no less important to the school district than those more highly visible accomplishments in other areas.

Essential Services

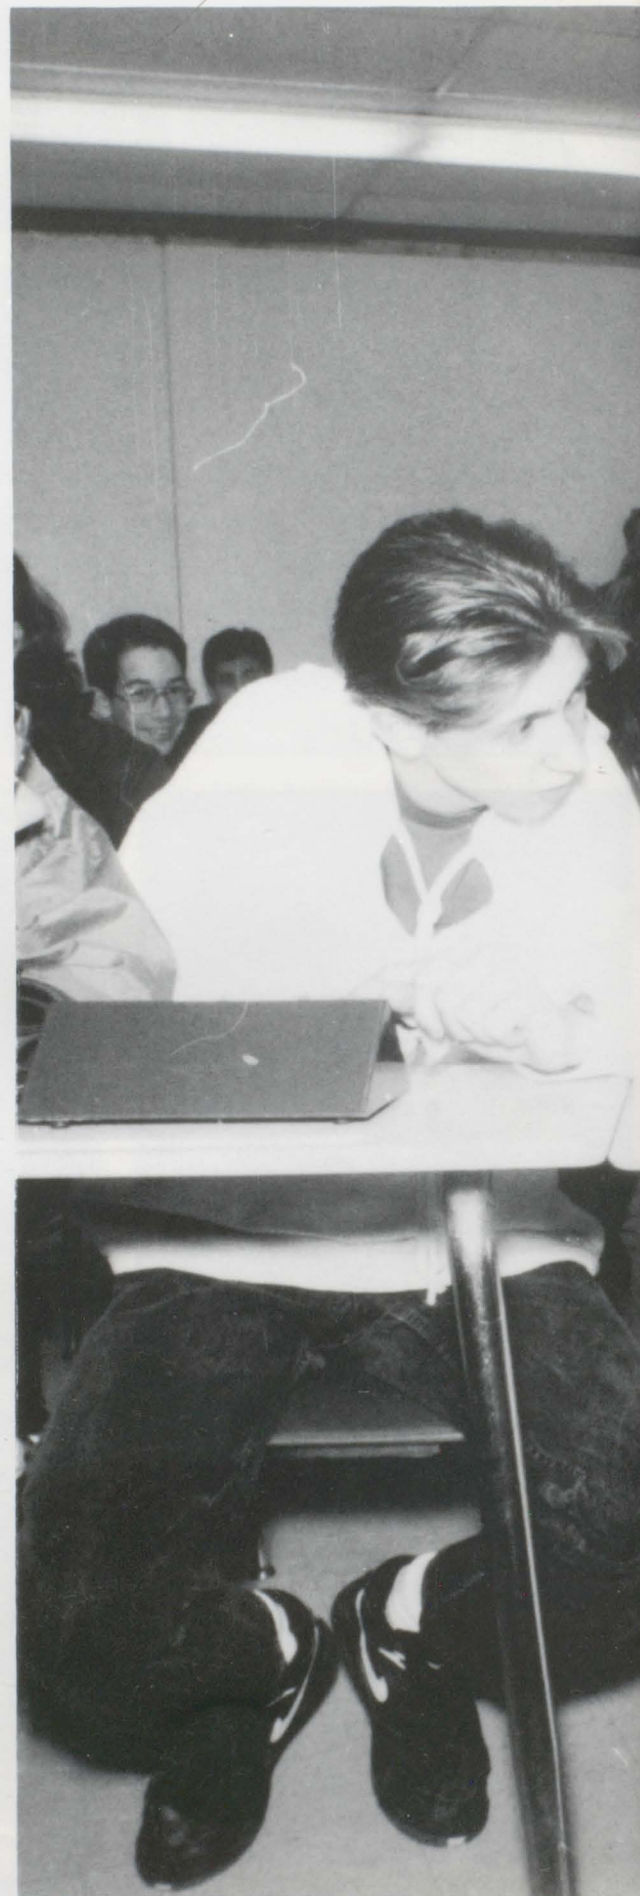

Essential services at Yale High School are usually provided without a classroom setting but help the classrooms run more smoothly. Examples of these services include janitors, administration, secretaries, counselors, librarians, bus drivers, resource room teachers and cooks. The individuals working in these areas may deal with a few students, like a resource room staff member, or may come in contact with every student, like a cook. Maintaining a smooth running atmosphere for our high school allows teachers and students to concentrate on education. "I think the biggest challenge of this job has been to try to keep a good educational progress for our school while dealing with large class sizes and a bad facility" is how one of our newest member to our staff, Principal Roger Wood, explained his job. "I see my job as being here to help with all aspects of the school from students to teachers to administrators with the best part of the job being able to work with the students" is how Rose Curtis described her varied job of high school secretary. The support staff's job is the most important essential service helping, maintaining and contributing to the smooth operation of Y.H.S. education.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF ENRICHMENT

Education at Yale High doesn't end at 2:05 P.M. Students may further enrich their education by participation in one of the eleven different groups and organizations offered to the Yale students. Activities are performed within these groups and organizations, such as fund raisers, field trips, community services (blood drive and food drive), dances, or learning about a foreign country by conversing with one of the exchange students here at Y.H.S.

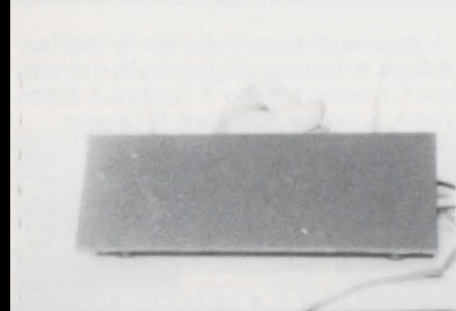

How important are clubs and organizations to a student's learning? " It gives students an opportunity to use their knowledge outside of the classroom and gives them a chance to access their skills against others," is how Quiz Bowl coach, Mrs. Hedge answers this question. Student Council advisor Mr. Little, further defines the role of groups and organizations. " It is our duty to help those in need. If a student gets involved, it helps him/her make group decisions, and it helps make Yale a better place to live. Group activities make a student feel proud."

These are not just fun and games for the Y.H.S. students but also the continuing of the learning process beyond the 2:05 P.M. dismissal time.

They organize the parade of the homecoming floats and plan all our dances. Student council is much more work than many may think. Senior student council spent late hours of the night putting up decorations for the homecoming dance. When I asked Steve Kwasnik, President of the senior class, what they exactly do, he said, "We meet at least once a month discussing how to improve the school system, what we can do for the Christmas dance and the upcoming prom. We organize the blood drive and help prepare for it."

During the blood drive, the Student Council gave a very big hand in helping out with getting the student next in line to give blood, passing out the cookies and juice, and keeping the weak students from fainting. This year was a record breaking blood drive by 10 more pints than last year.

"I enjoy seeing all the little kids come up to me, wanting to shake my hand", was a comment from one of the Bulldog Pack members, Lindsey Meleg. When asking some other questions to members, this was what they said, Q: Does the costume really weigh a lot, and does it get very hot and sweaty inside of it? A: No, the costumes are not very heavy, but it does get really hot and sweaty in the costume, even in the cold weather. Q: Do you have a clear view or is it hard to see outside of it? A: The view is pretty clear. It has a wide space to see from, but at times it gets a little hard.

Congratulations for giving us another year of extra excitement!

Hamming It Up

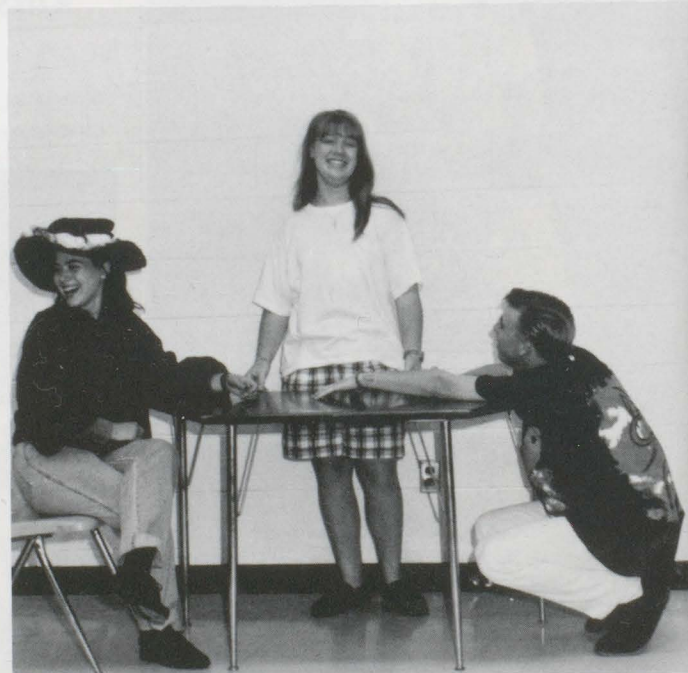

Who puts on entertainment every year for the public of all to come and see!? The drama club! Each year they put joy and laughter on the faces of all ages and sizes. "We have meetings about once or twice a week, discussing who is going to try out for which part, what we are going to use as a fundraiser, and what field trips we can go on, but we really haven't started on anything permanent at the moment," said Susan Drotar, treasurer of the Drama Club. When talking with Drama Club President, Siouxy Campau, she commented, "It's a good, strong program with good actors and actresses who are dedicated and just love to be on stage. We're like one big family. When the play is over, it's sad taking down the stage and cleaning up. It's like you're losing something. We miss it."

The title of this year's act is, "The Groom Said No." I'm sure we will all enjoy it. Good luck, Drama Club!

Club De Español

Hola estudiantes! Este año el club de español es muy grande! In other words, this year the Spanish club is very large. There are 58 eager spanish speakers in the Yale High School club. Don't worry, its not true that at the meetings all they do is sit around and speak spanish!

Throughout the year the spanish club sells M&M's and love-o-grams to raise money for their traditional trip to an authentic Mexican restaurant at the end of the year. Last year the club went to Chi-Chi's.

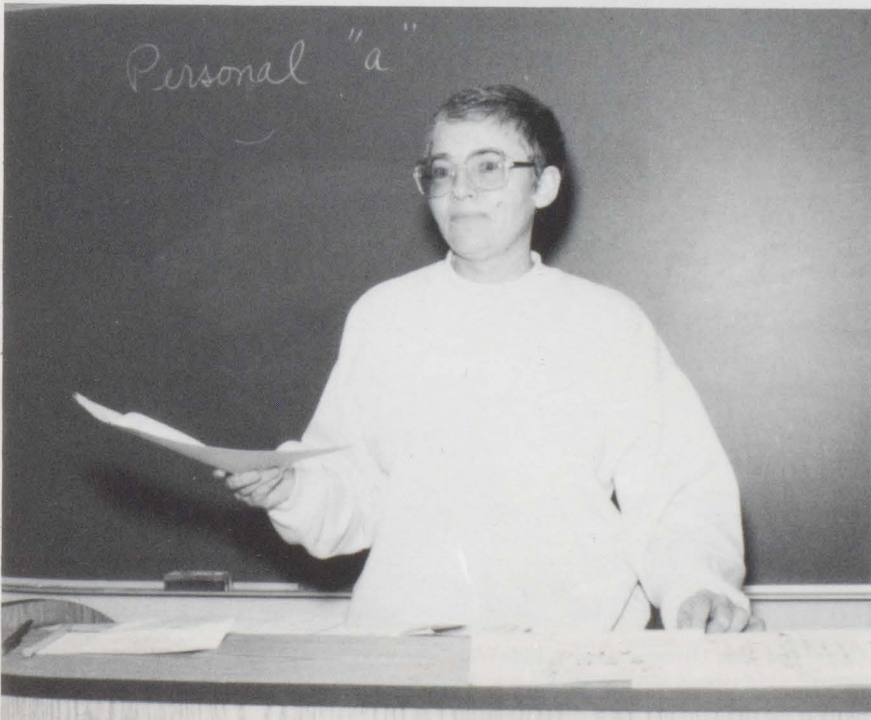

The club also uses the funds to make spanish meals from recipes that the students pick out themselves. They shop for the items needed and then they cook them up and try it. All of this is done in one of their after-school meetings, which are held about once a month.

When asked what she liked best about the Spanish Club Jenny Parker replied, "Me gusta hablar español," which translates to "I like to speak Spanish."

Students Say "NO!"

Students are standing up for the right to protest against drinking and driving. S.A.D.D. is an organization for students that stands for Students Against Drinking and Driving. "This year was a good year for the S.A.D.D. members. It seems that more students participated in the 'Red Ribbon' campaign than a lot of earlier years. Most students showed that they were against drinking and driving by wearing the ribbon either in their hair, on their wrists, or on their car.

During lunch, the S.A.D.D. members carried large sheets of paper around to the tables for students to trace a handprint to show that they cared. They are becoming more involved," said S.A.D.D. member, Scott Jawors. S.A.D.D. is against drinking and driving because it endangers not only the life of the driver, but also any other passengers in the car or on the road. Remember also, friends don't let friends drink and drive.

"More students participated in the Red Ribbon campaign this year."

TAKING TIME OUT

N.H.S., A service to the community.

What program in the Yale High School honors seniors with a grade point average of 3.5 or up? That program is the National Honor Society!

The students in the N.H.S. meet about once or twice a month to "take time out" as Jennifer LaFleche said and discuss what sort of activities they should get involved in. Jennifer and Mr. Hunt both agree that the sixth grade overnight is one of the best activities that the club participates in. At these events they take a select group of sixth graders, based on their grades and interest, and work with them on photography projects and scientific experiments. The N.H.S. students also plan other activities for the youngsters to enjoy.

Another service that the National Honor Society performs is the tutoring of any students that need or request it. The N.H.S. also takes time to attend cultural events not usually available to students such as a visit to the symphony or attending a play.

The National Honor Society is more than just a club for students with 3.5 grade points, it is also a service to the community.

FUTURE SCIENTISTS

What club in the Yale High School and Junior High consists of 28 budding scientists? That club is the Science Club! The club meets about once a month to plan what sort of trips and tourist attractions they should visit throughout the year. In the past, the club has visited such places as Toronto, Washington D.C., and Ontario.

Occasionally, at an after school meeting, the club will perform small chemical experiments that are of interest to the members of the Science Club. Liz Champion said about the experiments that "they are fun and you can learn a lot from them." Mr. Hunt agrees with Liz and adds that he "tries to find the necessary items for whatever experiments the students suggest."

The Science Club has been a big part of Yale Public Schools for twenty-three years and running. The students in the Science Club are proving to be quite the scientists.

MORE THAN HOME

"It's just not about the home even though the initials stand for Future Homemakers of America. We raise money to provide a holiday dinner for needy families and to go to the state meeting or conference at Western State University. It really stands more for the future what with the civic duties we as members do for the community," is how F.H.A. member Suzanne Perry sees this organization. To be a member in this group, one needs to be a present or former member of one of the following classes : foods, clothing, personal living, parenthood or health(as long as the teacher is a certified home-ec. teacher). A member does not have to be female, but the Y.L.S. chapter is all female this year. A project this year that was within the school was to increase faculty moral by pairing F.H.A. members with staff members; each member then would send "secret" pep notes and small gifts to the staff member. Members are moving into the 1990's by learning skills that stress more than cooking, sewing and tending the family. Future homemakers will need to know how to balance family with a career and also how to be a responsible member of society. It's just not about the home anymore.

IN THE SADDLE

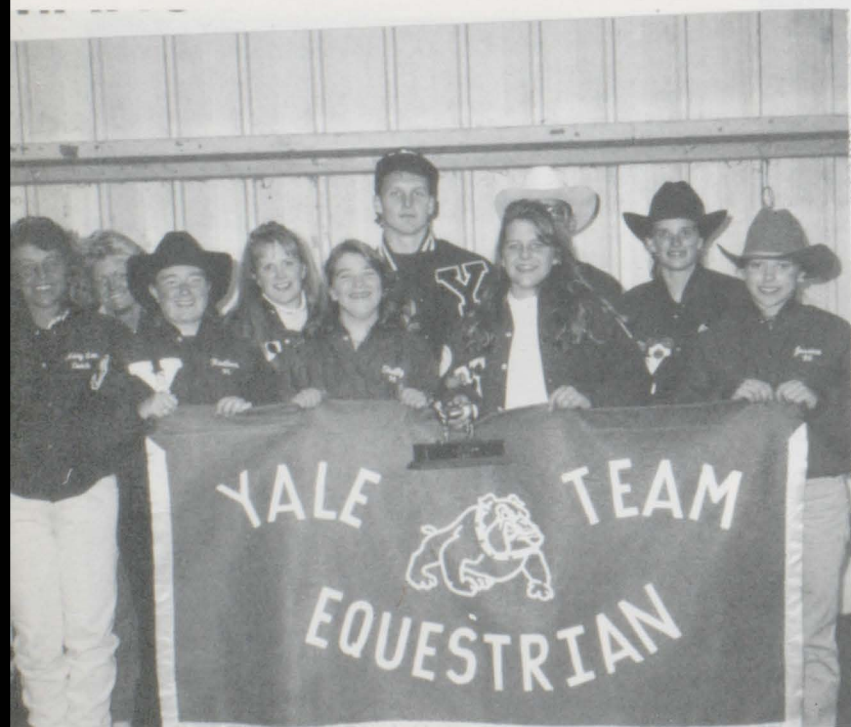

Saddles, bridles, curry brushes, boots, and hats are some of things that students must provide for themselves for this organization, not to mention the all important animal known as the horse. Equestrian Team is without a doubt the most expensive club available to the Y.H.S. student with costs that could run in to the several thousand dollar range. The reason that students get involved is an extension of furthering a hobby, that of showing horses and traveling the horse shows. Yale High School's Equestrian Team is included in a district much like other sports or clubs that includes Northern High School, Deckerville, Port Huron High, Marine City, L'Anse Creuse, Memphis, Richmond, St. Clair, Croslex and Capac. This year's shows were all held at the Goodall's Fair Grounds. The competition is judged on how a student controls the horse and the overall picture of the rider and the horse as a team. Points are amassed for each class (i.e. showmanship, western, horsemanship, hunt seat equitation, etc.) with first place receiving six points, second place receives five points, etc. to the last place being sixth place with only one point. At the end of the meet the coaches add points of each individual on the team with the team acquiring the most points winning the meet. This year's team was the winners of the Class B division which allowed the team to compete at the State Championship held at Mason, Michigan. Y.H.S. equestrian team came in fourth in the state at this meet.

For those students that have the horse, saddles, bridles, etc. the Equestrian Team is the club of choice.

MIND GAMES

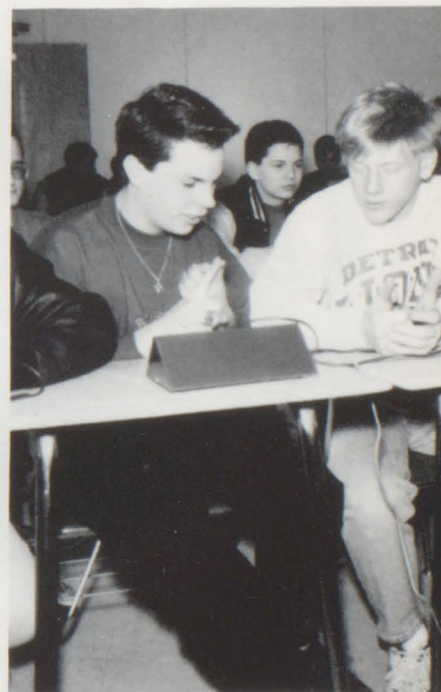

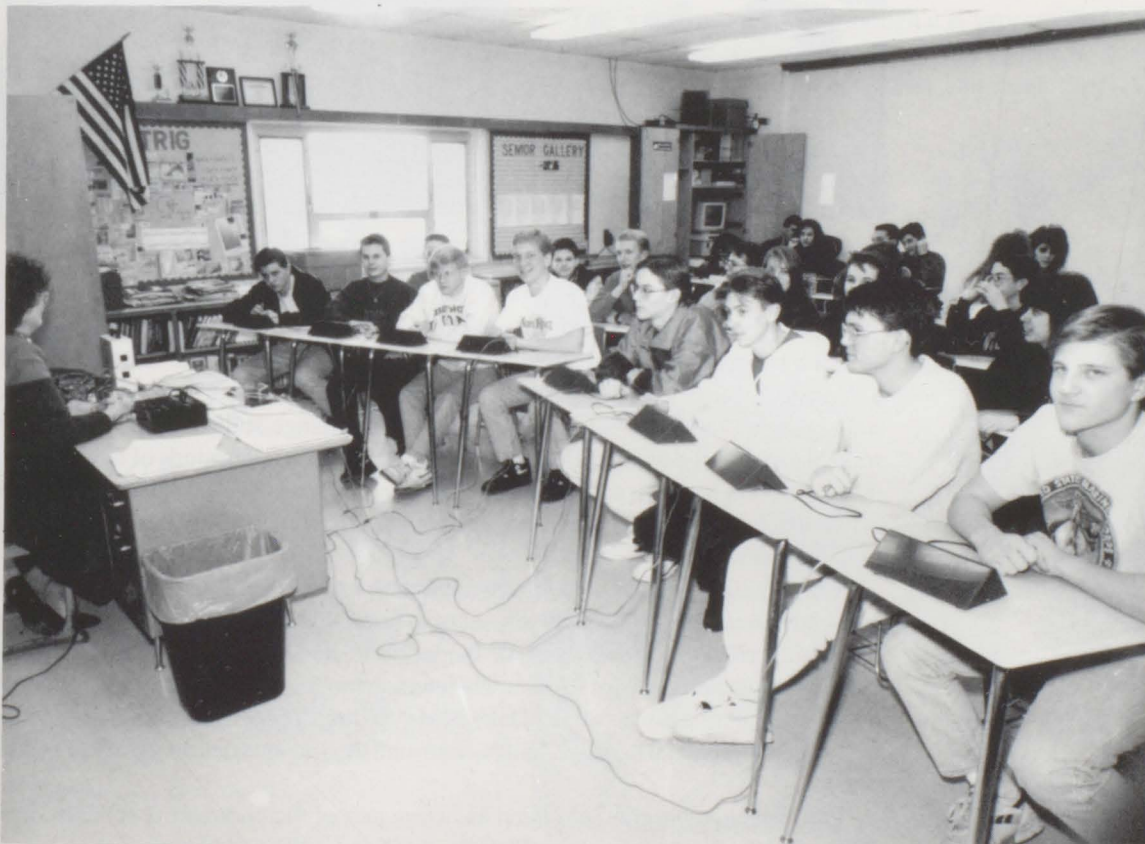

Jeopardy! In high school! How can this be an educational experience? Quiz Bowl is an extra-curricular activity that tests students' knowledge in a competitive format much like the popular T.V. game show Jeopardy with the exception that the student answers a question instead of answering with a question. The subjects that are asked of the team members are all inclusive of all disciplines, with questions from any area such as art, history, science, etc. The first team to buzz and answer the question correctly earns five points. If the answer is correct, that team is then asked an additional question, which only they may answer. At the end of the contest that team which has acquired the most points wins the event. This year's team hopes to improve their standing in the league over last year's team. "Sports took away some people that could have been on the team plus we were a fairly young team," is how 1992's captain assessed last year's team efforts. Y.H.S. is a member of the Blue Water Quiz Bowl League, which includes Port Huron Northern, Port Huron High, Marysville, Marine City, Capac, St. Clair and Algonac. "I enjoy coaching the Quiz Bowl Team, and I'm glad that the students have an academic competition," is how coach Mrs. Hedge feels about this organization.

Quiz Bowl at Y.H.S. is not just fun and games but a true learning experience. It is an organization that tests a student's knowledge and rewards academic superiority.

Different Cultures and Heritages

The International Exchange Student program is an organization that has been a learning experience for many students that have participated in it. The community of Yale has been involved in this program for about 22 years, bringing three to four students at a time to our school to show these exchange students the ways of our society and also the many different cultural and ethnic backgrounds of our country. In the time that Yale has participated in this program, some Yale students have been privileged enough to visit other countries such as Denmark, Japan, and Germany, to name a few.

Not only is the exchange program a learning experience, it is also a breakdown of racial barriers that some students seem to form. Christine Campau says that the program "brings more awareness of the world to students." She also said that "it makes the world seem a lot smaller when we can notice that although our countries differ, we are all people." Barb Daley adds, "I don't think there's anything better to show culture, racial heritage, and background than an international exchange program."

The exchange program has been an active part of the community of Yale since 1976 and has shown many people many different cultures and heritages.

HOLA! The 19th of August of 1992, I left from my hometown of Medellin located in Colombia, South America, for an adventure of one year in a country different from mine in both customs and language. I had spent a week here in Yale before starting school, and I had much trouble speaking English. However, with the help from my family, teachers, friends, Mr. Little, and the students in Yale, I soon began to learn the language.

The students, my family and in general the people of this country have treated me in a very friendly way. I thank you all very much for all you have done for me.

In the time that I will be in the United States, I am trying to adapt to the customs that you practice here. Day by day, I am convincing myself that what my parents told me in Colombia was true, "That which one learns in life can't be taken away." Now I am learning a new language and some different customs that are going to be of much use in the future.

HELLO! I'm Patrick, the German exchange student, and I'm proud to be a Senior at Yale High School! I think that this letter gives me the best opportunity to thank everybody, who made this year the most wonderful experience of my whole life. Although I sometimes thought work was getting too much, I always got everything done because my teachers and all of my friends really helped me a lot. There is also a second important thing that you guys taught me this year. I have never in my life before seen students working so hard in order to make their dreams come true. Many of my friends were working several days per week to be able to afford a car, or more important; to pay the college tuition. Your ability to be able to work so much and think so hard makes me proud to be a Senior of '93, and I will tell that to everybody in my country who will ever ask me!

I'll miss you, but I know that I'll come back some day, and I hope that I'll see some of you again.

Hi! I am Hannah from Germany. I was here this year as an exchange student. I enjoyed it here very much. It was a great experience to learn what the real "American way of Life" is. It was much different than what is shown in the movies.

Yale was a nice school, although it is very small; I liked the atmosphere. I want to thank all the teachers and students who helped me so much. Also, I want to thank my Host family, the Trexlers, who were real nice parents and made me feel at home. Thanks again!

A DIFFERENT TYPE OF ATHLETE

Within Yale High School twenty-four different sports are offered to both boys and girls with one-third of the student body participating in these various sports. One major accomplishment of this program this year has been the Cross Country Team, which won the class B championship in the state, putting them in the top ten. Mr. Falter, the athletic director was asked if he saw a correlation between academics and sports? "Students who are involved in extracurricular activities seem to do well in academic courses also. Some are motivated to stay eligible, but most are just motivated to excel whether it be in the classroom or on the field." The Yale sports program presents an academic letter to those student athletes who have at least a 3.0 G.P.A. and a varsity letter. The same criteria is used by the STA for the Academic All Stars Award. Approximately 50% of the Y.H.S. student athletes achieve this goal, the largest number in the STA. Another award offered by the STA is the Sportsmanship Award to the school whose fans demonstrate the best conduct at sporting events, Y.H.S. has received this award for the past five years. With twenty-four offerings, one-third of the student body involvement, academic excellence of our athletes and superior conduct of our fans, Y.H.S. excels in sports.

TOUCHDOWN!

"Even though we won a lot of games, it was disappointing not winning the title." This is how Dennis Barr assessed this year's varsity football team. The 1992 season is the first time in four years that Yale has not won the S.T.A. (Southern Thumb Association) award. This year, the overall record was 6-3, and 4-2 in the league.

Not just the juniors and seniors played varsity football this year; there were also two sophomores: Justin Kestner and Brian Campbell. When asked how it felt to be moved up to varsity, Brian replied, "I was excited and nervous with anticipation." He also said that the best play he made this season was when he scored his first varsity touchdown in New Haven.

Most of the football players agree that the reason they play is because they like the physical contact.

SECOND PLACE IN S.T.A.

"The junior varsity football team enjoyed a very successful and rewarding season," J.V. coach Mr. Gallemore said of the 1992 season's football team.

The team's overall record was seven wins, one loss, and the STA standing was four wins, one loss, taking second place. Mr. Gallemore also said that "the goal at the beginning was to show improvement week by week, and we certainly accomplished that."

Freshman Derik Davenport received the hustle award, and fellow classman Steve Barr received an award for the high improvement he showed in the offensive position. Jason Cole, a Junior, also received an award for his noted improvement on the defensive side. Mr. Gallemore adds that "the fine season we had should, with continued hard work and dedication, prepare us for continued success at the varsity level."

SHE SHOOTS; SHE SCORES!

"The varsity girls' basketball team was a group of extremely hard working girls both in the classroom and on the basketball court," the girls' coach, Mr. Sandy Rutledge said of the 1992 season's varsity girls' basketball team. Of the thirteen basketball player, eleven of them received Academic All-League awards for their achievements of maintaining a 3.0 grade point average during the season. Yale led the Blue-Water Area with 285 three point shots taken and 87 shots made. Johanna LaGore led the area by setting a school record of 58 three point shots.

Although the team was younger than usual with four sophomores, they improved steadily and won four of their last five league games, including a win over League Champion, Brown City. The girls tied for fourth place with a record of 10-11 overall and 6-8 STA.

LADIES TAKE THIRD IN S.T.A.

The junior varsity girls' basketball team was successful in the 1992 season. The girls took third place in the STA with eleven wins and three loses. The overall record of this season tallied up to be fourteen wins and six loses. Mr. LePla was proud of the team and said that they "showed tremendous growth and potential."

With Audrey Bell as the captain of the girls' team, they showed hard work and determination and pushed their win column to fourteen for the season. Jodi LePla received the Hustle award for her speed and grace shown on the court, and Nicole Marshall also received an award for the high improvement that she showed. The 1992 season proved to be successful for the juniorvarsity girls' basketball team.

COORDINATION AND ATTITUDE

"Being together and working as a team" is what varsity cheerleader Andrea Rector likes about cheerleading. The 1992 varsity football cheerleading squad consists of five juniors, two seniors and two sophomores, Andrea Rector and Aimee Bastianelli. Andrea commented that she was "excited because it made her feel important" when she was moved up to the varsity team. Angie McGeary enjoys "spreading spirit throughout the school", and Tracy Kern likes the competition of cheering in other schools.

The major part of fall cheerleading is the preparation, planning, pep and the actual day of homecoming. Cheerleaders are responsible for establishing days of the spirit week, taking a class count. "I think winning is the best part-especially after all the work and planning-to see it pay off with a win," is how senior Michelle LePerre described it. "Another important part of the fall cheerleaders is we raised most of the money for our uniforms and camp"-Tracy Kern-"Camp taught us all of the new stunts we used this year."

The cheerleaders are also involved in other activities. For example, to give the football players the confidence they need in order to do well in the game, the girls give them little bags of candy and other sweets called "pep notes." The girls make signs and posters to decorate the halls of the school and let the students know when the games are and who they are against. In the past, they have also done fundraisers, such as car washes, to raise money for new uniforms. Teamwork is a big part of cheerleading.

PEP HELPS BUILD SPIRIT

Cold weather, short skirts, goosebumps, and sore throats are a few of the things that the junior varsity cheerleaders have. On the bright side, they also have a lot of pep, big smiles, and a loud cheer to "pump the crowd" as Angel Blasczyk said. Tara Vilas agrees with Angel and adds that she likes "being part of the team."

Tara also says that there are joys and disappointments to cheering at the games. She mentioned that it is disappointing when the team loses, but the best times are winning and going the whole game without messing up a cheer.

Although there were only six cheerleaders for J.V. football, they succeeded in building the confidence of the football players by putting pep notes on the football players lockers. The cold weather did not stop the J.V. cheerleaders.

The 1992 Lady Bulldog cross country team stomped on every team in the Blue Water Area, and they were near the top of the State rankings throughout the season. The team was led by Seniors Mandy Spiller, Amy Tesluck; Juniors Ronalyn Willard, Laura Pelt, Jenna Kubitskey; Sophomores Kim Boughner, Danielle Upleger, Lynda Rosenthal, and Freshman Jenny Spiller. The Lady Bulldogs had a common goal all season, and that was to be in the top five in the state of Michigan. The highlight of the season for the ladies had to be the Three-Peat performance at the Marysville Invitational. The Southern Thumb Association only has three teams in cross country so the only competition for these individuals is the S.C.A.L., league which consists of Richmond, Algonac, Imlay City, Marysville, St. Clair, and Cros-Lex. "So, when Yale takes a beating to these teams, it's a pleasure," says Coach Jack Hennesey. Yale went to regionals knowing what they had to accomplish, and that was to come home with a regional title for the second year in a row. They did just that and then placed 10th in the State Finals. Even though the girls fell short of the seasonal goal to place in the top five, Coach Hennesey states that, "They still came out winners!"

"...IT'S ATTITUDE"

The 1992 Boys' Cross Country team was a dominating force in the Blue Water Area. The Bulldogs had a lot of talent this year with a lot of perception on what they had to accomplish this season. Leading the team this year were Sophomore Demian Manceau and Senior Tom Pemberton; both were qualifiers for this year's State Finals in Grand Rapids. Other team leaders were Seniors Ben Manceau, Scott Huffman, Pete Bullard, and Marvin Gill, along with Juniors Matt Manceau, James Bauman, and Freshman Jared Shutko. The highlight of the team was when the Bulldogs took a second place finish at the Port Huron Invitational. A fine coaching job was done by Mr. Carl Trupp, and 1992 graduate C.J. Trupp, who is now running cross country for Grand Valley State University. Second team All-Blue Water Area went to Senior Tom Pemberton. All-Blue Water Honorable mention went to Senior Ben Manceau and Sophomore Demian Manceau. "As a coach, it was a challenge to convince the guys of their potential," Hennessey says. "Cross Country isn't dedication; it's attitude." He also replied that Cross Country is about 80% mental. He tells his runners that if they believe they can run a fast 5k (3.1 miles), then they will. Cross Country coach Jack Hennessey reports, "You have to teach a person to run before he can, which means that you just can't run. So much like football, you have to be taught fundamentals," Coach Dams once acknowledged that high school runners are like babes. They have to be taught to run. He says, "It is not easy, and it could take you your whole life before you learn." The Boys' Cross Country team had a lot of guts to try and be in the top of the Blue Water Area for running.

HOOPIN' IT UP

The Yale High School Varsity Basketball team jumped into the season with an optimistic outlook. This year's team seemed to have more potential than the teams of previous years, with the height and the experience of the members. But the beginning of the season was racked with team injuries and near wins. "Most of the games at the beginning of the season were lost at the buzzer by one or two points, those are the losses that really hurt," is how junior Ryan Wesley assted the beginning of the year. By mid-season the members were back from their injuries and the outlook once again looked hopeful to pull out some wins.

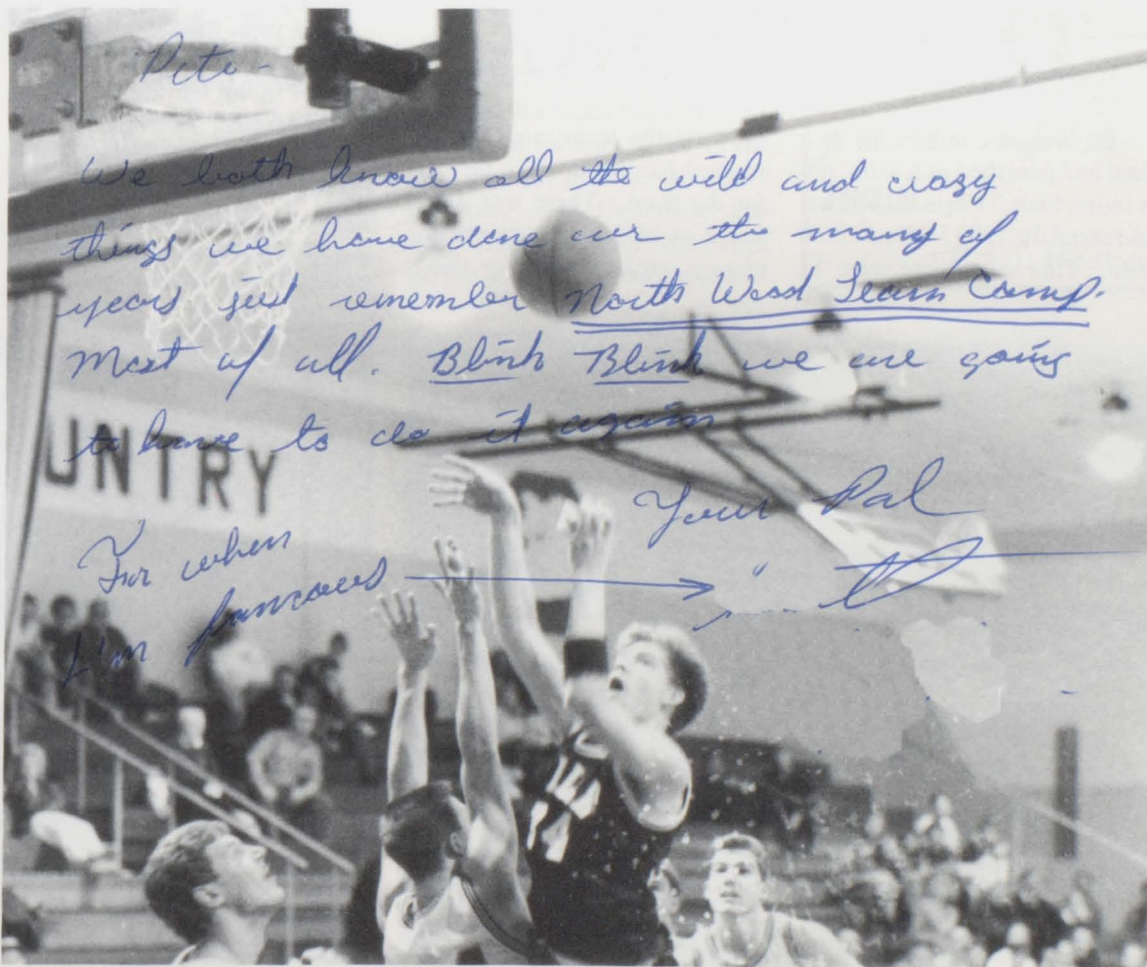

With an overall record of three wins and 18 loses, the record in the STA was a total of two wins and five loses. The 92-93 Bulldogs were coached by first year varsity coach Wayne Smith. "We have a very young team, but the players have varsity experience, which helped." Mr. Smith said.

For the third year in a row Ryan Wesley and Brian Lossing, both juniors, played forward position, while seniors Scott Huffman and Greg Gardner played the guard position. The team showed some improvement on the court towards the end of the season, with senior Mike Bauer showing outstanding play. Mike was the only Bulldog named to the all league teams. Mr. Smith said "Mike is one of the hardest working men on the team. He worked very hard to improve his game and you could see results of that effort from game to game." The Yale varsity basketball team ended the season with a positive outlook of the improvement that they showed.

TEAMWORK

"We are commended as a team and punished as a team, not as individuals," Chris Backstrom said about the 1993 JV Basketball team. This year, there were 13 guys on the team, and they all worked hard to achieve the best for the team. There was a real sense of closeness between the players, an Jamie Proctor said it nicely by saying, "There is no I team."

This year, with Mr. Palmateer as the new JV coach, the team showed a lot of improvement. Justin Kestner said that, "The Coach may yell and scream about our mistakes, but it's all for the improvement of the team," and improve they did. With an overall record of 7 wins and 13 losses, who can argue?

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

"The 1992-93 freshman basketball team enjoyed a fine season," is how the coach, Mr. Gallemore, describes the team. He also said that the objective was to show improvement and exhibit good sportsmanship at all times, and the team accomplished that. Each person on the freshman team has fulfilled their role on the team, which contributed to their team's functioning. The team is made up of thirteen boys who have improved with each game they have

Brian Bearss, who has been playing basketball since he was in second grade, said that he likes "Being part of a team and competing against other teams." Brian also said that when the team wins a game he feels as if "all of the hard work of practice has really paid off." Mr. Gallemore also added that "the experiences each person on the freshman basketball team had should prepare them well for competition at the next level of play."

DEFINITELY A SPORT

"Trying to cheer the guys on so that they can win and we will feel good about ourselves," is why, said Carrie Potts, she became a cheerleader. The 1993 junior varsity cheerleading squad for the basketball season showed a lot of teamwork on the court and off. The girls work to organize different activities for the students of Yale to participate in at the pep assemblies. The girls also stand by and give the basketball players the support they need in order to play well in the game.

The junior varsity girls, like the varsity, also attend the competitions. The squads are scored on appearance, voice projection, attitude, coordination, and precision. The competitions are held in Sandusky, Kingston, and Capac, which is where the team gets a chance at the STA title.

Contrary to what some people believe, cheering is definitely a sport. The girls work hard at their practices, and even harder at the games, although some of the girls on the squad agree that they could use a little more cooperation from the crowd with some of the cheers that involve the participation of the spectators. Carrie also added that "I think cheering is great and it helps the guys win a game. We would cheer them on even if they lost."

COMPETING CHEERS

The 1993 varsity basketball cheerleaders work together as a team to help boost the confidences of the basketball players. Although there is not as much room to cheer, the girls did really well projecting their voices in the enclosed area of a basketball court. Also, the weather is not an issue for the squad.

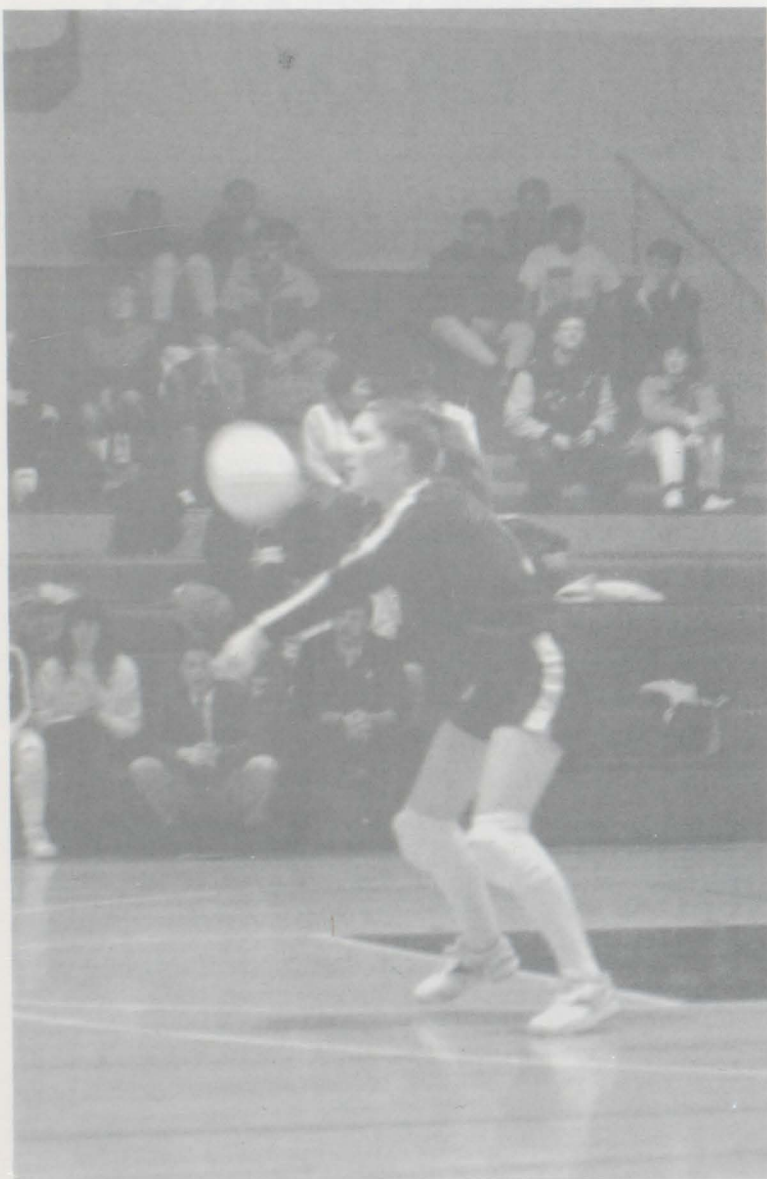

"I like basketball cheerleading because we get to compete and it is a longer season," Andrea Rector said about the winter cheerleading season. Competition is a big part of the season. Each year, the girls go to competitions in Sandusky, Kingston, and the STA competition is held in Capac. The girls are scored on appearance, voice projection, precision, coordination, and attitude. The last two years, at the Sandusky competition, the Yale varsity squad has won their all-around competition. Teamwork is an essential part of the 1993 varsity basketball cheerleaders.

The Varsity Volleyball squad from Yale has always been a team to reckon with for the past few years. This year the team is again led by the experienced coaching of Rick Collins. The team also has the leadership of six seniors. The girls have done an excellent job so far this season to put a stop to the offensives of the opposing teams. The rest of the team consists of four juniors and one sophomore. 1993 Seniors such as; Amy Tesluck, Mandy Spiller, Kory Falter, Kelly Reed, Bonnie Smith, and Siouxzy Campau, will do their best to show the underclassmen teammates what it takes to be a severe force in the S.T.A. league.

WORKING TOGETHER

"This year the volleyball team is really fun because we all work well together and strive to meet our goals," is how Jaime Kinney describes this season's junior varsity volleyball team. The squad has fifteen freshman and sophomore girls that work well together as a team and are really close. When asked what she liked best about playing volleyball Jenny Beschoner replied "The team is fun to play on because of the people that are on it and we are doing so well." Most of the girls have been playing volleyball since they were in the seventh grade and have become very "team oriented" as Jaime Kinney put it.

The season has gone well for the girls. So far, the team has won twenty-two matches and have lost only four. The team took first place in one of the tournaments that they have played in and second in two other tournaments. This season's junior varsity volleyball team works really well together and they are meeting their strived for goals.

WINNING BY PINNING

Yale wrestling has been a dominate force in the state for the past few years and continued that elite force of grapplers this year. The varsity wrestling team is lead by co-captains Dave Lay, Tom Pemberton, Steve Kwasnik, and Dan Lay. Coach Jim Peltier and former wrestling standout Matt

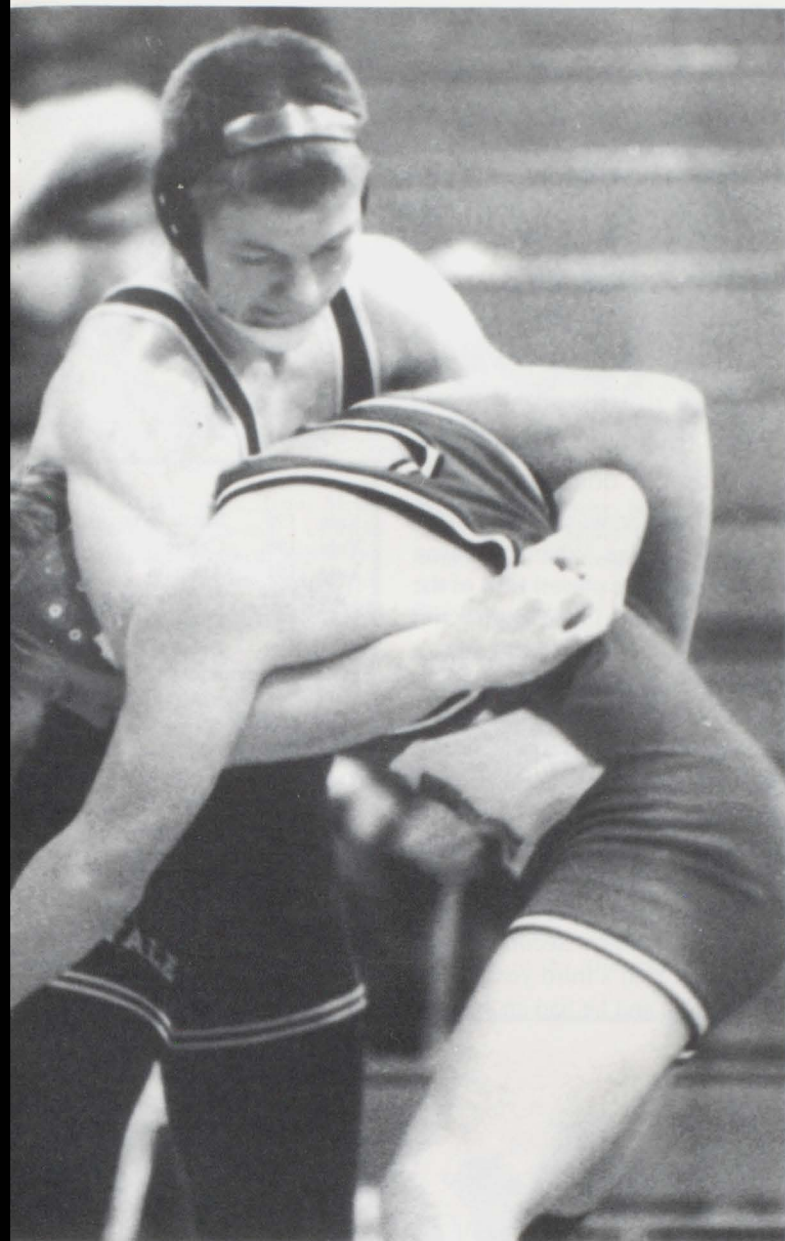

Brown said that, "wrestling takes a lot of dedication and the grapplers have that special dedication because they are the last of the "dream team" from the 1990 season"; Yale was state quarter finalist for that season. Other team leaders for this season were Juniors; Denny Barr; Brad Francek;

Tim Harnden; Tom Behnke and Freshmen; Steve Barr. The wrestlers went 6-0 in the S.T.A. for the fifth year in a row and have had more than half the line up undefeated in the Southern Thumb Association this season.

Tough Season

At the beginning of the season Coach Frank Johnson said "Last year's team had the ability to win the close matches. We didn't win by a lot, but we won the close ones. We will have to do the same thing again this year for us to repeat as the champs." This year, however, was not to be a repeat of last year. When the season was over, Yale placed fifth of the five STA teams in the league with a dual meet record of 0-8 and an over all STA record of 0-12. Only three members from last year's team returned, Ken Kovatch, Jeff Kendall and Ryan Wesley, with the remaining eleven members being new to the team this year. The major highlight was the naming of Ken Kovach to the STA All League Second Team. This was Ken's third year on the golf team, and he had an average of 48. Also selected for the STA All League selections for Honorable Mention were Mike Turner and Jeff Kendall. "We had a tough season and just didn't have the breaks. Everyone worked hard and did their best. The team stuck together and supported each other," is how Coach Johnson assessed the season.

Tennis Truths

Finishing a season with a one and nine record is not the end of the story for the Y.H.S. Tennis Team. Inexperience and the lack of returning team members was the major problem of this team. With only three veterans, the remaining nine members were first year players. Even though inexperienced, three of the nine matches were lost by only one point. Highlights of the season included doubles victories by Dan Graves and Jim Yurko and the third place winning leagues performance of Craig Wissel and Chris MacLeod."We are planning on a big improvement this year now that we have some experience , but next year will be a difficult year again due to the loss of this year's seniors," is how Dan Graves assessed this year's chances. Team member Craig Wissel further predicts, " I think the team has improved and may have a winning record this year."

The Yale Varsity Baseball team, always a major force in the STA, finished first in the STA League with an overall record of 20-2 and a league record of 14-0 giving the team the league championship. Holding a sixteen game winning streak this year's team played better than anyone could predict. Team co-captains this year were Jeff Mason and Ken Campbell. Ken received all district honors for his pitching record of 8-1 and Jeff received all district honors for catcher.

Other major accomplishments of this team was Coach of the Year honors to first year coach Mr. Don Smeznik, winning the Yale Invitational for the first time in six years and making it to the Class B districts only to lose the opener to Cros-Lex, 3-2. Individual accomplishments included Kevin Kovatch leading the team in stolen bases and batting averages and spirited contributions from Brett Davenport, Brian Lossing, Mark Priess and Steve Childers.

To unify the team this year the team developed the theme "A Moment of Silence" as part of the team's warm up. The entire team minus Coach Smeznik would gather at the sidelines kneel down and take a moment of silence to reflect on what each player had to do to bring the team yet another victory. Superstitious as this may seem the results speak for themselves.

Right: Jeff Mason doing what he does best, protecting the plate from unwanted guests. Jeff took great pride in rejecting any base runners attempting to waltz their way into his territory.

Junior Varsity: Championship Training

The 1992 Junior Varsity Baseball team last season captured the STA league title with an impressive 9 and 1 record. "It was an excellent season as all players showed steady improvement from the beginning of the year to the end" commented Coach Gallemore. Such improvement needs the leadership of veteran players such as Ken Kovach heading up the outfield, and Brett Davenport in the catcher's position, Brett also had some experience at the Varsity level throughout the season. The team at all times showed excellent sportsmanship throughout the year. The younger part of the team also showed the necessary experience to lead the team through another league winning season. The team also had an excellent pitching staff with players like Brian McClelland and Thad Kavanaugh. The team shows tremendous possibilities for next year, and to win another league championship is in the realm of reality. The team shows a great amount of potential, and if their spirits remain high, will repeat next season.

EUNICE

Tonya Kavanaugh led the 1992 Varsity Softball Team to an outstanding season again, even though the team did not win their league championship they did show an enormous amount of competition for the rest of the teams. Finishing with a record of 11-3 league and 18-6 overall the team showed the force often. 1992 graduate Tonya Kavanaugh led the way for the teams defense being the main pitcher for the team, her record alone was 17-6. Tonya wasn't the only person to do a lot of damage Senior

Kory Falter led the teams' stolen baserunners having 19 successful attempts. Eunice became the theme for this years Varsity team, unity was the key to the teams successful year. Co-captains Tonya Kavanaugh and Sarah La Gore kept the team together to make the games fun no matter what happened in the end. Such dedication to the sport earned her the award called the Florence Stevenson junior olympic scholarship award. This award is presented to only one athlete out of four counties. Some of the unsung heroes of the game were Shelley Gleason, with the teams fewest strikeouts, Casie Lay with her defense capability. Carrie Eschker the teams only Junior received Mr. Robinson's Coaches Award along with STA Honorable Mention.

Building Up Team Confidence

The J.V. Softball team this year had a really good team with a record of 8 - 7 overall. Breaking in a new coach was the hardest thing to do though. Coach Tracy Kavanagh was not new to the sport, setting her share of school records a couple of years ago. Having a coach with such a great amount of experience only which helped the shape the team it itself had lots of talent. Leading the team was Alison Pierce, basically the only pitcher on the team her record a remarkable 8 - 7 her sophomore year. Alison also led the teams offensive strikes with the teams most stolen bases and the highest batting average. Freshman Jaime Kinney also added alot to the teams sticking close with Alison all through the season in batting and base running she also was the team's main catcher. Also freshman Jessica Herrin, this years Ms. Hustle, was a big part in to defensive department. With only eleven names on its roster, playing time wasn't scarce. The team had many close games this year, and next year promises to be as good.

Girls Lead Boys

The Yale Varsity track for high jump. teams have been a powerful force in the STA league. The boys' team in the 1992 season was a competitive force, finishing 3-3 in the Southern Thumb, and 3-4 overall. In invitational competition they finished as a threat in all but the Harbor Beach Inv. which there was obviously no competition. All league honors went to Mark Harnden, Tom Pemberton, C.J. Trupp, and Richard Pirie for distance; Ben Manceau

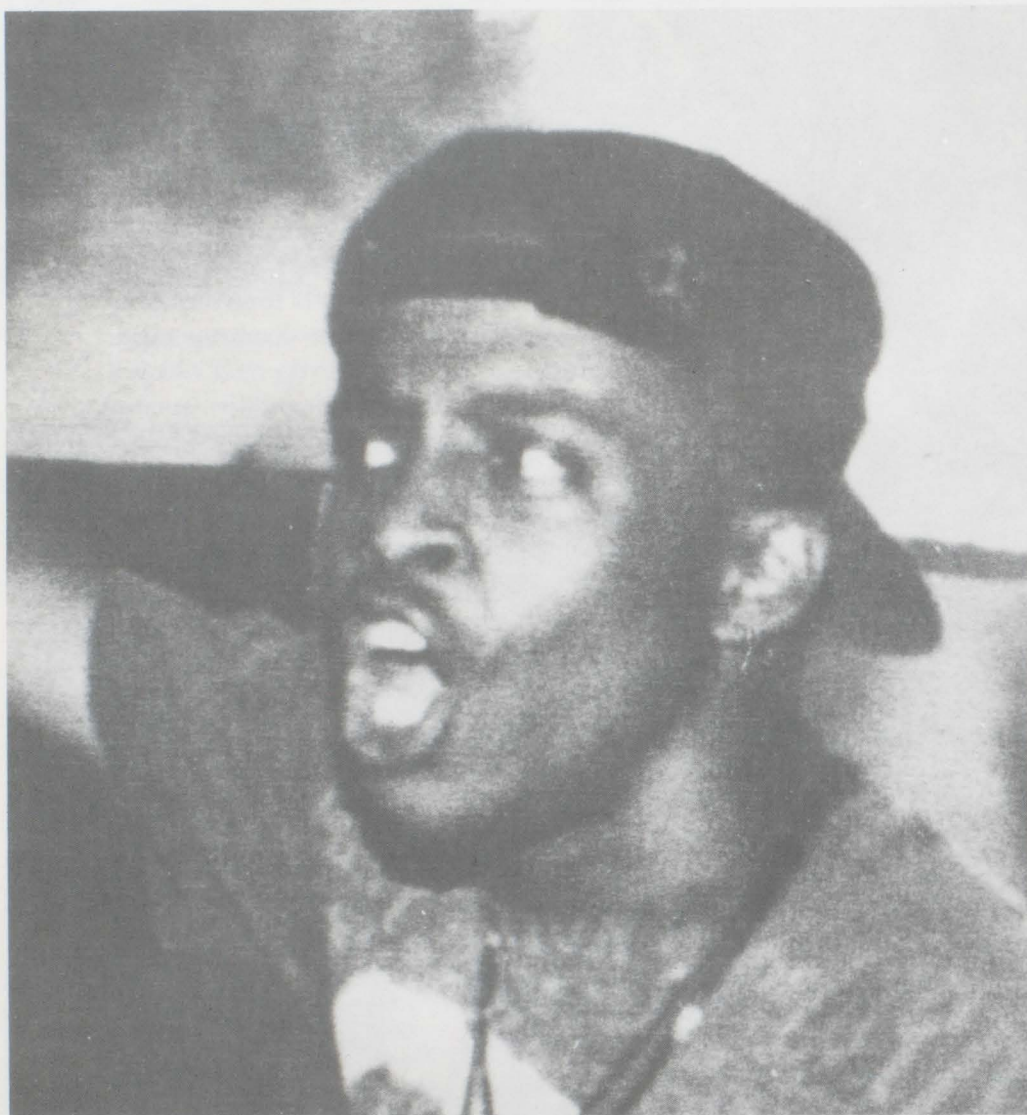

The girls' team seemed to be a more dominant team. They ran every meet with virtually no competition, winning every league meet and finishing 6-1 overall. Also, they finished in the top four places in every invitational meet winning 3 of the 7 meets. The team was led by the impressive running of Amanda Spiller. Additional league leaders were Amy Tesluck, Sara Porada, Kim Boughner, and Ronalyn Willard.

NEWSMAKERS

Newsmakers in '92-'93 were the election, the L.A. riots, and the hurricanes that swept through Florida and Hawaii.

In the election there was a different twist when an independent candidate, H. Ross Perot, entered the race. There was a total of three debates for the Presidential candidates, for which all three sides claimed victory. The main candidates, George Bush and Bill Clinton, spent most of the election fighting over the issue of character. Many feel this is what helped Bill Clinton win the election.

Due to the "not guilty" verdict in the police officers' trial who were shot with a video camera beating "motorist" Rodney King, a huge riot shot throughout Los Angeles. Blacks angered over the verdict, burned

" If George Bush doesn't understand the problem... how can he solve it? We can't afford four more years." - Bill Clinton and looted stores and beat innocent people throughout L.A. . After days of rioting the National Guard and police put the riots to an end.

More tragedy struck the states of Florida and Hawaii when hurricanes whipped through the states destroying everything in their paths. Hurricane Andrew terrorized not only Florida but also the southern tip of Louisiana. Hurricane Iniki destroyed many homes and property in Hawaii. After days of destruction, relief efforts started to help the victims of Hurricane Andrew and Iniki. Tented housing were put up to help the people left homeless by the hurricanes. Food and clothes were purchased with funds donated through the Red Cross.

SCANDALS

On October 3, 1992 the reaction was a stunned silence. This is a reference to Sinéad O'Connor's performance on Saturday Night Live when she ripped up a photograph of the Pope. Although this caused an uproar and quite a controversy, Sinéad's new album, "Am I Not Your Girl?", continued up the Billboard charts.

Rapper Ice-T's song "Cop Killer" by his Heavy Metal/ Thrash band, Body Count, was criticized by various police groups. Ice-T later removed the song from the band's record, but kept singing the song at concerts and handed the song out for free.

"Murphy Brown" shot back at Vice President Dan Quayle for criticizing her for having a child out of wedlock. The character, played by actress Candice Bergen, said that in no shape, way or form was she trying to glamourize the "lifestyle choice" as Dan Quayle would put it.

The season's premiere was one of the most watched shows of season. Although Murphy's baby is an important element in the show, not all of the shows will deal with the child says the show's new producer, Steve Peterman.

The Royal Family was surrounded by scandal throughout the year, many books were published about Princess Diana and her rocky marriage with Prince Charles. Duchess of York, Sarah Ferguson or better known as Fergie, was also a source of controversy. Nude photos of her and her financial advisor were published in a variety of tabloids. Along with the books and tabloid reports, television mini-series and movies were made or being planned by the networks ABC, NBC, and CBS.

ENTERTAINMENT AND SPORTS

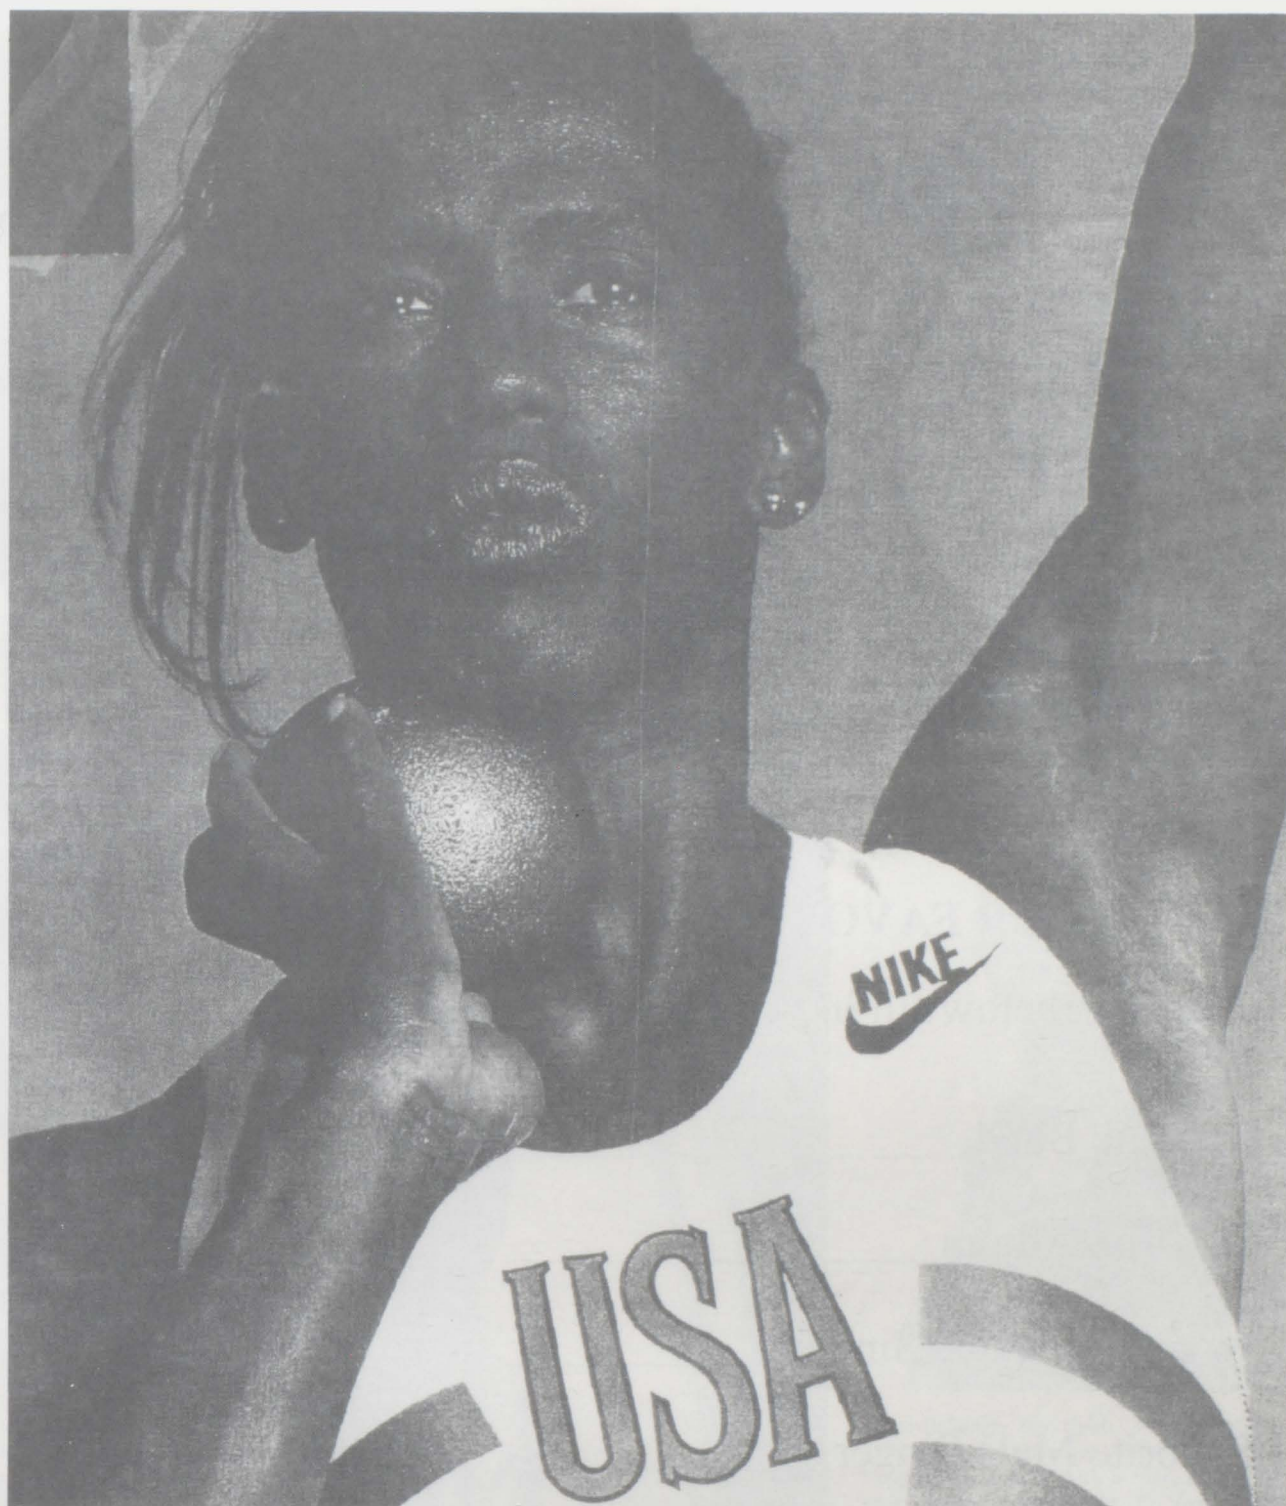

Jackie Joyner Kersee became the first woman to win consecutive hepthalons in the Summer Olympics, which was held in Barcelona, Spain. Since 1984 Kersee, 30, has been the top heptathlete in the world.

Also in Barcelona, Michael Jordan, Larry Bird, Magic Johnson, and other basketball stars played on the United States "Dream Team". Unsurprisingly they won every game they played.

Although baseball has the official title of being "America's Pastime", movies and television remain the real pastime. In movies, Wayne's World and Batman Returns were two of the top box office leaders. Wayne's World was released in February of '92, but the Wayne's World frenzy continued until the end of the year and plans were being made for a Wayne's World II. Batman Returns was number one at the box office; however, some felt the kid - targeted movie was too violent.

In television, "Home Improvement" was a favorite. The series stars Michigan's Tim Allen and mixes his stand-up comedy with the typical sitcom formula.

"People see me as being invincible or see me as being the best" - Jackie Joyner Kersee

POPULAR MUSIC

This was the year that country and rock took over the charts. Consumers seemed tired of a market saturated with Mariah Carey and Michael Bolton. All five of Garth Brooks' albums hit the top ten of the billboard charts, and Billy Ray Cyrus album Some Gave All was number one for 17 weeks. The heavy metal band Guns N' Roses released two albums, which both spent time at number one on the billboard charts. After the five year hiatus, Def Leppard came roaring up the charts and debuted at number one with their album, Adrenalize. Although it took two years for people to catch on,

Nirvana came to popularity with their second album, Nevermind, and their hit single "Smells Like Teen Spirit." Last but not least En Vogue, which had been called the best female R+B group since the Supremes, released their second album, Funky Divas, sporting an eclectic batch of songs, ranging from rock to rap to soul. To show the album's variety, the two hit singles were the dance song "My Lovin' (Never Gonna Get it)" and the hard rock inspired "Free your Mind," an anthem against racial prejudice. All in all, it seems that it was a varied year in popular music.

A DIFFERENT LOOKING COMMUNITY

The yearbook is available to the students at the present cost of twenty-five dollars due in large part to the advertising dollars that are collected from community businesses. Without the advertising, the yearbook's real cost would be approximately thirty-five dollars. All things change, and this year's biggest change was the loss of William's Department Store; for the past seventy-eight years this family-owned and operated chain of stores was a main anchor of our community. This was not the only loss of a business; Mikey's Hobby Shop also closed this year, and rumors persisted of even further closings of other local merchants. Another problem that the yearbook students encountered was the difficulty selling ads for this book due in large part to the economic status in the country. If the trend continues in loss of revenue, the closing of small town businesses and the rising cost in yearbook production, the yearbook as we know it may come to an end. Therefore, 1993 was truly a year of changes for our community, and we thank the businesses on the following pages for helping make this yearbook a reality.

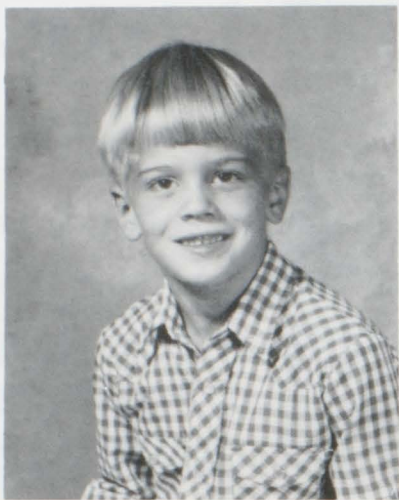

Far Left: Williams Department Store, a fixture of downtown Yale for seventy-eight years closed its doors in 1993. Left: One of the older buildings in Yale is the Yale Hotel. Heather, age 9, and Noel, age 6, are the children of our Herff Jones Yearbook Representative, Bob LaBerge. Bob chose this picture for his ad as a reminder for himself and others of the importance of the child. With 1993 being the year of the child, Bob and Herff Jones wish to reconize this event and encourage others to draw attention to this year long celebration.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the cultural context of the research. It highlights how cultural differences can influence the interpretation of data and the design of the study. The second part of the paper focuses on the methodology used in the research. It describes the sampling process and the data collection methods. The third part of the paper presents the results of the study. It discusses the findings and their implications for practice. The final part of the paper concludes the study and provides recommendations for future research.

The research was conducted in a cross-sectional design. The sample consisted of 100 participants from various cultural backgrounds. The data was collected through a series of interviews and surveys. The results of the study show that cultural differences significantly impact the interpretation of data. This finding has important implications for practice, as it suggests that researchers must be aware of cultural context when designing and conducting research. The study also provides recommendations for future research, including the need for more diverse samples and the use of culturally sensitive research methods.

In conclusion, this study highlights the importance of understanding the cultural context of research. It provides valuable insights into how cultural differences can influence the interpretation of data and the design of the study. The findings have important implications for practice, and the study provides recommendations for future research.
